

COLLEGE OF LAW

General

Stetson University College of Law publishes its own separate Viewbook. A copy may be obtained on the College of Law's website, www.law.stetson.edu/admissions or by writing to the Admissions Office, Stetson University College of Law, 1401 - 61st Street South, Gulfport, Florida, 33707.

Stetson University College of Law, founded in 1900, is Florida's first law school. Students may earn a J.D. degree by attending classes on a full-time or part-time basis. Those with a J.D. or foreign law equivalent may pursue an LL.M. degree in International Law or Elder Law (an online program); foreign attorneys also may apply for advanced standing in the J.D. program. For more than half a century, the law school was located in DeLand, Florida, on the University's historic campus. In 1954, the College relocated to Gulfport, Florida, a residential municipality contiguous to St. Petersburg. Although the College is now approximately 150 miles distant from the main campus, it continues to be an integral part of the Stetson University system. In 2004, the College of Law opened a satellite campus in downtown Tampa. Limited part-time and full-time classes are held at this location. Florida's Second District Court of Appeal has offices in and hears arguments in this building. The Tampa Law Center places the College within easy access of the many educational opportunities afforded by a heavy concentration of law firms, courts, and corporations.

The College is approved by the American Bar Association and has been a member of the Association of American Law Schools since 1931.

Library and Physical Facilities

The main Law School campus, located on 21 acres, is adapted from an early type of Mediterranean Revival architecture. The buildings, constructed around plazas and connected by arcades, or loggias, after the plan of ancient monasteries, are remarkably utilitarian and completely air-conditioned.

Educational facilities include six large classrooms, all fully wired for technology; five courtrooms, including the country's first elder-friendly, barrier-free courtroom; offices for the law review; five seminar rooms; a new Student Center; and a state-of-the-art Law Library and Information Center. The College has its own cafeteria, tennis court, basketball court, fitness center, and swimming pool. The Great Hall is used for dining and other functions. Overlooking the campus's central plaza are dormitory rooms. Other living facilities include the John T. Rosa apartment complex and 40 single-family homes.

The College of Law's Dolly and Homer Hand Law Library in Gulfport is constructed in the Mediterranean Revival design that pays homage to the architectural style of the Rolyat Hotel (the original building of the College of Law). This beautiful building houses more than 400,000 volumes and provides access to a wide variety of law and law related online databases. The Gulfport facility offers both wireless and wired access to the campus Internet network. This three-story library provides 35 group study rooms ranging in size from four person rooms to seminar rooms seating eight. The Gulfport library seats 670, offering seating at carrels and tables as well as lounge seating. The Tampa Law Center satellite library is a two-floor facility with 15 group study rooms and 197 seats. This facility provides wireless and wired Internet access and a print collection.

Pre-Law Preparation

The College of Law prescribes no particular major as a prerequisite for admission; nonetheless, there are important skills, values, and significant bodies of knowledge that can be acquired before law school that will provide a sound foundation for legal education. Rather than seek out law courses as an undergraduate, students should prepare for law school by choosing courses that will develop skills in analysis, problem solving, written and oral communication, research, task organization and management; abilities in critical reading, listening and in oral and written communication; and the values of serving others and promoting justice. Some basic areas of knowledge that are important to the development of a competent lawyer that should be developed before entering law school include history, political thought, theories of ethics and justice, economics, basic finance, human behavior and diverse cultures.

Application and Admission

New full-time and part-time J.D. students are admitted only in fall. LL.M. students in International Law and Elder Law (online program) may start in the fall or spring; LL.M. students may attend on a full-time or part-time basis. Applications from members of minority groups and from women are encouraged.

J.D. applications must be submitted online; the link is available on at www.law.stetson.edu/admissions. Applicants must also submit a nonrefundable application fee. The application fee will be waived in a case of extreme financial hardship.

All J.D. applicants are required to take the Law School Admission Test and register for the Law School Data Assembly Service. Registration forms and a bulletin of information may be obtained from Law School Admissions Council, Box 2000, Newtown, PA 18940, or www.LSAC.org.

As a prerequisite to J.D. enrollment, each approved applicant is required to have earned a baccalaureate degree from a college or university that has been accredited by an accrediting association recognized by the U.S. Department of Education. Special admission programs are available to qualified Stetson undergraduate students.

In reviewing a J.D. applicant's qualifications, the faculty committee on admissions gives primary consideration to the cumulative undergraduate grade-point average and the LSAT score. However, all other relevant data concerning the individual are evaluated, with special regard to the college's goal of obtaining a student body profile reflecting diversity and potential for significant achievement. All applicants must present satisfactory evidence of good character.

Basic Program of Study and Degree Requirements

To be eligible for the degree of Juris Doctor (J.D.), a student must complete a minimum of 88 semester hours of credit with a cumulative grade point average of not less than 2.25. In addition, to meet residency requirements, a student in the full-time J.D. program must take classes over six semesters or its equivalent. Full-time study requires completing ten or more hours per semester and five or more hours per summer session. Students in the part-time J.D. program typically will attend for four full years, including three summers.

The College offers a course of instruction planned to equip the graduate for effective service in those areas in which the fundamental knowledge and skills of a lawyer are required. Effort is made to give students a broad perspective of the role of the lawyer and the law in a changing society and an understanding of how they as future community leaders will be responsible for improving the law and for bringing about desirable social change.

Special Programs

Stetson's clinical and internship programs offer a wide range of legal venues where upper-level law students can work. These clinical programs permit students to work with government agencies and other legal services providers in a wide variety of contexts. Locations at which students may work include the State Attorney's Office, Office of the Public Defender, U.S. Attorney's Office, National Labor Relations Board, and local legal services offices. An In-House Counsel Internship places students in non-profit and for-profit businesses. The judicial internship program places students with local federal and state judges, offering the students an inside look at the workings of the judicial process. Students may also participate in the Summer Law and Policy Internship Program based in Washington, D.C. Stetson offers a joint J.D./M.B.A. program with the School of Business Administration of Stetson University, which permits students to obtain both degrees in a shorter time than would otherwise be required. The College of Law also co-sponsors J.D./M.P.H. and J.D./M.D. dual-degree programs with the University of South Florida. Stetson also offers the Spain Summer-Abroad Program, the Argentina Summer-Abroad Program, The Hague/Lausanne (Switz.) Summer-Abroad Program, and the China Summer-Abroad Program. A Winter Break program affords students the opportunity to study in the Caribbean in late December/early January, and a Spring Break program allows students to study abroad for one week in March. Second- and third-year students may spend a fall semester studying in London. An exchange program and a dual-degree program is available in Granada, Spain. Exchange programs are also available in Mexico and France.

Tuition and Fees

For the 2011 summer session, tuition will be $8,540 for full-time students and $5,910 for part-time students. For fall term 2011 and spring term 2012, full-time tuition will be $17,573. For fall term 2011 and spring term 2012, part-time tuition will be $12,141. All fees and other charges, refund policies, and current financial aid programs are available from the College. The College reserves the right to change tuition charges, or other charges or fees, before the beginning of any semester or summer session.

Housing

Accommodations for 40 students are available in dorms at the Gulfport campus. The Rosa complex, located three blocks from the campus, includes 32 two-bedroom apartments. Approximately 40 single-family dwellings are also available.

Career Development

The College of Law makes no specific claims or guarantees about employment prospects for its graduates. However, the College does maintain an active career development office to assist students in obtaining employment information and scheduling employment interviews. Placement surveys are conducted on each graduating class, and the results provide up-to-date information regarding the percentage of responding graduates who obtained employment in legal positions and the average starting salary for such positions. In addition to the placement surveys, Stetson maintains a website that provides our alumni and graduates with 24-hour access to job postings. The College also has the Resource Room that is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year.
