Hatters Baseball Coach Steve Trimper to Kick off Entrepreneurship Spring Seminar Series

Will discuss new book, "Walk off Winning"

What: Stetson University's Prince Entrepreneurship Program is kicking off its spring seminar series with the Hatters baseball head coach and new author, Steve Trimper, who will discuss his recently released book, "Walk off Winning." The book, which serves as a game plan for leading teams and organizations to success, was just released this month.

The event is free and open to the public; however, seating is limited.

When: Thursday, Jan. 30, 6-7 p.m.

Where: Stetson University DeLand campus, Rinker Auditorium, Lynn Business Center, 345 N. Woodland Blvd., DeLand, Florida 32723

Who: Head coach for the Stetson University Hatters baseball team since 2016, Trimper led the Hatters to a second-place finish in his inaugural run through the ASUN Conference and was ranked in every national poll during his second season. Prior to coming to Stetson, Trimper completed 11 seasons as head coach at the University of Maine where he took his team to the conference tournament nine times, winning the event to advance into NCAA Regional play in 2006 and 2011.

The School of Business Administration hosts Entrepreneurship Thursdays, a seminar series featuring nationally recognized speakers, pitch competitions and start-up advice to promote engagement and creative thinking.

Stetson University's Prince Entrepreneurship Program is an endowed initiative that seeks to develop the next generation of successful entrepreneurs. The program, in the Department of Management, offers students a major in entrepreneurship and minors for both business and non-business students.
