By Travis Romero

With input from CJ Barnes, Gianna Christensen, Calista Karapiperis, and Miles Reynolds

CONCEPT & CONTEXT

Dr. Julie Schmitt worked with a small group of students last semester to write an original play geared for younger audiences as part of a Hatter Ready Immersive experience. Considering the impact that theatre can have, she also encouraged the students to write about a social issue that they feel needs greater attention. The students agreed to write a play that centered out on women's healthcare from a historical perspective. Over the course of the semester, the students were able to write a play that is both engaging and thoughtful.

The play Collide focuses on three young adults that have recently graduated from high school. Before heading off into different directions, the three friends agree to go on an extended hike as a way to celebrate this milestone. Unfortunately, the friends get lost, but shortly thereafter receive help from a mysterious guide that is bent on revealing truths to them that had been hidden from their young eyes.
