Welcome to Education

You have declared your intention to work toward becoming a certified teacher in the State of Florida through the Education Program here at Stetson. Teachers indeed light the path to a better tomorrow for our young people. The professors in the Department of Education have made a strong commitment to providing you with a quality education program. We will strive to prepare you to be a creative, reflective, competent teacher who is equipped with the knowledge, skills, and disposition that will enable you to meet the needs of your students within a culturally diverse educational setting in a rapidly changing world.

The program is designed to provide a myriad of opportunities for you to become increasingly effective in your chosen teaching area by integrating classroom theory with practical experiences in the schools. You will begin observing in schools in your first course, and your field experiences will culminate in the senior internship.

To better acquaint you with the program, we have developed this handbook as a guide. While we will make every effort to adhere to the rules, policies, and procedures in this handbook, sometimes the Department of Education, our accrediting bodies, our university, and even our department may need to make changes that will require amendments in such areas as course offerings, degree requirements, regulations, and procedures.

From time to time, the Department of Education will send you online updates that explain any changes or supply you with other information that is important to you. We can only do this with your help, so please read the information and respond if requested. Thank you!

General Information about the Department of Education

Mission Statement

Our mission is to educate teachers and other school personnel to act as competent, effective and knowledgeable facilitators of learning able to use technology and research practices to enhance K-12 education; to create a community of learners responsive to the developmental and social needs of diverse learners; and to respond to student needs and advocate for change at both local and global levels.

Philosophy

As educators, our faculty encompasses a comprehensive philosophic perspective. We believe education should be learner-centered and that we should educate students to become productive members of a democratic society. We advocate individual growth and personal meaning through problem solving and reflection. We view school as a mechanism for change and seek to improve education especially in the areas of diversity and gender equity. We believe that enlightened individuals who focus on the learner and his/her individual growth can effect change in schools and society.

Aim

Our aim is to develop positive, creative, diligent, and reflective practitioners capable of assuming leadership roles in culturally diverse educational settings in a rapidly changing world.

Outcomes

Upon exiting the program, candidates are expected to demonstrate the following outcomes at the pre-professional level. They will have acquired the knowledge, skills, and disposition to be:

- reflective practitioners
- collaborative instructional leaders
- responders to diversity
- facilitative change agents

Evaluation of the Program

A survey is sent to program graduates and administrators of schools where graduates are hired as a follow-up on their perceptions of preparation on the Florida Teacher Competencies and the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices. This input is seriously considered when planning program modifications. Program graduates are encouraged to practice professionalism by participating in education surveys conducted by the department.

Education Program

This handbook is designed to guide elementary education majors through the Elementary Education Program. Individuals who complete this program successfully will receive a Bachelor of Arts in Education with an ESOL endorsement and be qualified to apply for an Elementary Education K-6 Professional Teaching Certificate in the State of Florida.

In addition to Stetson University's general education requirement, candidates will take courses that focus on teaching young children and diverse populations. These courses are determined by the accrediting agencies that approve the Education Program. Florida Department of Education (FLDOE) and the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). In addition, the department may require a specific course or courses in speech or English, based on public speaking, presentation organization, or writing skills using appropriate language. Mastery of the English language is required for student teaching placement.

Program Requirements

Elementary Education Program Admission Requirements

Admission to the Elementary Education Program does not occur automatically. Students who have declared Elementary Education as a major must fulfill admissions requirements listed below.

Some upper division courses are open only to candidates admitted to in the program. Being unable to enroll in these upper division courses will delay graduation.

To be considered for admission to the Education Program, students must:

1. Complete an application for admission to a program of study leading to certification;
2. Complete a Candidate Acknowledgment of Professional Dispositions Form (found on Canvas);
3. Present a minimum 2.5 grade point average for all college work taken at Stetson;
4. Earn a grade of C or higher in at least one Writing Enhanced Course.
5. Earn a grade of C or higher in all courses with the EDUC prefix.
6. Present a minimum 2.5 grade point average in major content area
7. Complete a successful interview with members of the Undergraduate Council, if a review of performance in foundation courses suggests weaknesses;
8. Join the Florida Future Educators Association (FFEA);
9. Follow the degree audit planner. ALL students MUST meet with their education advisor every semester;
10. Review the Undergraduate Student Handbook;
11. Purchase a subscription to VIA (department student management and assessment system).

All requirements must be fulfilled to be admitted to the approved program. There is no appeal for admission to the Education Program.

Once admitted into the program, students, also known as teacher candidates, must maintain a 2.5 or better GPA, pass required tests, and remain a citizen of the Stetson community in good standing. These requirements will be monitored throughout the program. If, at any checkpoint, there is a concern about the appropriate progress of a candidate, they may be required to meet with an education faculty committee before continuing.

Music Education Program Admission Requirements

Please review the Stetson University online catalog for Music Education program admission requirements for both Instrumental and Vocal majors.

<https://catalog.stetson.edu/undergraduate/music/student-policies/music-education/>

Course Lab Fees

When registering for particular EDUC or MUED courses, all students will be assessed a nonrefundable lab fee. For Elementary Education those courses include EDUC 265, EDUC 393, and EDUC 394. For Music Education those courses include MUED 265, MUED 354, MUED 356, MUED 355, and MUED 357. The fee will be used to purchase vouchers for required Florida Teacher Certification Exams. The vouchers will facilitate students' registration for required certification exams. The vouchers are single use only. Consult with Ms. Yodzis in the Undergraduate Office in Davis Hall 114 for more information.

Minimum Grade Requirement for Education Majors

Education Program requirements specify that only a C or better (no C-) will be accepted in all education and music education courses. The Stetson University retake policy allows students to retake any course, if offered, in which they received a failing grade (F), which they dropped (X or XF), or from which they withdrew (W, WP, or WF). If students earn a C- or D in an education course and students want to continue in the education program, they must comply with the following protocol:

Under special circumstances, with the approval of the appropriate Dean, students may retake one course, if offered, in which they have earned a passing grade and that they have not used course exclusion on. Only one retake of a course will be permitted. The course must be taken at Stetson University. The credit(s)/unit(s) for the repeated course will count in the student's semester academic load. Upon completion of the repeated course, both grades earned will be listed on the transcript regardless of the repeated course grade being the same, higher, or lower than the first attempt. All credit(s)/unit(s) attempted and all grades earned will count in the student's cumulative GPA calculation and in the GPA calculation for graduation honors. Only the credit earned from one course will count toward required graduation credit(s)/unit(s). This may result in having to take additional courses to meet graduation requirements. (<http://catalog.stetson.edu/undergraduate/student-policy/records-grades-registration/course-retake-policy/>)

Florida Teacher Certification Exams (FTCE)

Candidates must pass the Florida Teacher Certification Examinations (FTCE). Prior to student teaching, candidates must complete the required FTCE exams - the general knowledge, professional education, and subject area. All candidates take the same professional education test, and all candidates take a test in their major subject area (specialization). For elementary education majors, the test is Elementary K-6. No student can graduate from the state- approved program unless all required tests are passed.

FTCE and the Education Program

Some courses in the Education Program require that candidates take and pass all sections of the FTCE tests prior to admission to student teaching. The following table displays the corresponding courses in which FTCE tests must be taken in order to pass the course with a minimum grade of C.

FTCE Tests	Elementary Education Course	Passing Score Required for
General Knowledge (GK)	EDUC 265: Principles and Methods of Diverse Learners	Admission to student teaching
Professional Education (PE)	EDUC 393: Professional Educator I	Admission to student teaching
Subject Area Exam (SAE)	EDUC 394: Professional Educator II	Admission to student teaching

FTCE Tests	Music Education Course	Passing Score Required for
General Knowledge (GK)	MUED 265: Principles and Methods of Music Instruction for Diverse Learners	Admission to approved program
Professional Education (PE)	MUED 354/356: Instrumental/Choral Methods I	Admission to student teaching
Subject Area Exam (SAE) Music K-12	MUED 355/357: Instrumental/Choral Methods II	Admission to student teaching

FTCE and Student Teaching

Candidates who student teach during the fall semester must pass all FTCE tests by May 1. If student teaching takes place in the spring, all FTCE tests must be passed by December 1.

Candidates will only receive school placement when all passing scores on the FTCE tests are received in the Office of Undergraduate Education.

FTCE Test Descriptions

General Knowledge Exam (GK) tests basic skills. The test contains four subtests: an essay, multiple-choice English language skills, reading, and mathematics. The essay and English language skills subtests measure general skills such as formulating a thesis statement, providing supportive details, arranging ideas in a logical and an organized pattern. Specific skills of word choice, sentence structure, grammar, spelling, capitalization, and punctuation are included. The Reading subtest includes passages with questions measuring literal and critical comprehension. The mathematics subtest includes arithmetic, geometry, measurement, algebra, statistics, and logical reasoning. Candidates must pass all four subtests to be accepted into Student Teaching.

Subject Area Exam (SAE) measures content area knowledge, usually in a multiple-choice format. For elementary education majors, the content areas include; liberal arts, social science, mathematics, English, reading, science, history, as well as methods courses in the education department. The areas covered on this extensive exam can be found at the following website: www.fl.nesinc.com. It is imperative that candidates examine the content expectations of the exams. Candidates who feel weak in a certain area(s) are strongly encouraged to elect courses to strengthen those areas. For Music Education majors, the content area comes from all academic music courses taken as part of the undergraduate degree.

Professional Education Exam (PE) assesses general knowledge of five content bases: personal development, appropriate student behavior, planning instruction, implementing instruction, and evaluating instruction. All candidates for initial certification will take the same Professional Education test.

FTCE Study Guides

There are helpful guides for the FTCE exams available for purchase. Check online resources such as <https://thelearningliaisons.com/>, www.amazon.com or local bookstores. Study materials for FTCE Testing can be checked out through the Stetson library.

FTCE Testing Sites

FTCE tests are given at Pearson VUE Professional Testing Centers strategically located through the state. Under normal circumstances, tests are given seven days a week with morning, afternoon, and evening availabilities.

Information and registration are available online at www.fl.nesinc.com. Stetson must be listed as an institution to which scores can be released during registration. An unofficial score report will be given as soon as the test is completed. Candidates must upload their score reports into VIA by Watermark in the courses where the tests are a requirement (see chart on page 11). Special accommodations can be made for students with disabilities. Check the “Registering for Alternative Testing Arrangements” area of the FTCE website and contact the Office of Academic Success and Accessibility.

Please note:

- Test takers must wait 31 days to retake a failed exam.
- Information can and does change from time to time. It is the candidate’s responsibility to keep up with changes in testing provisions.

Education Field Experiences

The Florida Department of Education views field experiences as one of the most important components of the Education Program. In order to provide for the best combination of learning activities in our Education Program, all education majors will participate in early and continuous field-based experiences beginning with the 200 level courses and culminating in the senior student teaching experience. Every effort is made to provide a variety of experiences in school location and grade level. Candidates will be given opportunities to work in multicultural settings in the city of DeLand or surrounding municipalities.

Travel Acknowledgement/Waiver Form

Beginning with the 200 level courses, all students are required to complete and submit the Travel Acknowledgment Waiver form. It is the student’s responsibility to complete, and return, the form on Canvas or to the Undergraduate Education Office in Davis Hall 114.

Important considerations:

- When in the field, candidates represent themselves and Stetson University. Education majors are held to high expectations for professional demeanor and dress (see page 14 for expected dress code). Candidates may be sent home to change their clothes by school personnel or university supervisors if they are found to be in violation of the dress code.
- Failure to complete field experience hours (including time that may need to be made up for failure to adhere to dress code) within the semester will result in a maximum final grade of C- in all Literacy Block and Integrated Block courses.

- Failure to complete field experience in the foundation-level education courses will result in a course final grade no higher than C-.
- Posting of or about students, teachers, classroom, or school events to any social media outlet is strictly prohibited.

Early Field-Based Assignments

During freshman and sophomore years, students will be involved in observation and/or working with students in classroom environments or observing in other educational settings, such as school board meetings. These assignments make the content of education courses relevant as well as help develop the knowledge, skills, and dispositions necessary to facilitate student learning. Students will have opportunities to observe teachers in the process of teaching and in some instances will interact with the students.

Junior-Level Field Experiences

During junior year or first semester senior year, students, or candidates after being admitted into the program, will increase their experiences in classrooms. Candidates will teach individual lessons, complete units, and participate in special educational projects such as judging science and/or social studies fairs or, for Music Education majors, attending District Music Performance Assessments (MPA). Increased reflection and a working knowledge of the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices begins to connect theory to practice.

Senior Student Teaching Experience

Student teaching is the capstone semester experience where the candidates will demonstrate all of the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices and the Danielson Framework for Teaching as he/she works with a cooperating teacher in a school setting. This experience is intense and will be the full-time educational experience during the semester. The Student Teaching Handbook will be provided at the beginning of student teaching.

Field Experience Assignments

Field experiences are arranged through the Education Department's Main Office and in some cases by the professor teaching a particular course. In all cases, students must not approach a teacher or school concerning placement. Field placements are made in cooperation with the districts in which placement is sought. There are many considerations for field placement that are taken into account before placements are made, including, but not limited to; a variety of settings and grade levels, distance from campus, and teacher qualifications. In advanced placements (student teaching), the cooperating teachers must have completed staff development training and be certified Clinical Educators before an advanced intern may be assigned to the class. Senior interns must be placed so that the supervisors can visit classrooms to assist and to supervise the interns in a timely manner.

Field Experience Expectations and Requirements

Candidate's field experience schools will have both expectations and requirements of all guests in their classrooms. Many of these expectations are common to all schools in a district and may be required by the state.

Ethical behavior: Teachers are held to a strict code of ethics. Candidates are expected to go to the field placement at the stated times and days. All information shared while in the clinical setting must be treated as confidential. Candidates must abide by the Code of Ethics (Appendix K).

There are two levels of clearance for working with children in schools. Level One: complete the Volunteers in Schools form for Volusia County. A driver's license is required for arrest checks as part of this clearance. Level Two: prior to student teaching, candidates must be cleared through finger printing (state requirement). Please note: Any record of child abuse or neglect, any record of sexual abuse, and certain levels of drug related arrests will result in the denial of a teaching license in the State of Florida. In addition, any arrest, even if charges are otherwise expunged or sealed, are NOT expunged or sealed as far as working with children is concerned. Candidates, who have any doubt about a Level Two clearance should make an appointment with the department chair to discuss the situation. All candidates must be cleared to volunteer, and student teach by the appropriate school district. Stetson University has no control over this clearance. It is important candidates review the Code of Ethics found in Appendix K.

Appropriate Dress: Stetson students can only enter the field dressed appropriately. Candidates are not only guests in the schools when observing or participating in field experiences at any level, they are also networking as a future professional. Therefore, the Education Department has strict expectations for professional dress for students representing Stetson in the public/private schools. The examples listed below are considered inappropriate dress or appearance. This list is a guide and does not necessarily represent all circumstances in which the school or the education department may consider certain appearances as inappropriate dress:

1. Body piercing such as nose/naval/tongue rings
2. Unconventional hair styles such as unusual coloring/spikes
3. Tops that show midriff when arms are raised
4. Shorts, tight pants, short skirts, low-riding pants or skirts that may reveal underwear when crouching down or sitting on the floor
5. Sports attire or leisure athletic wear including; sweatpants, muscle shirts, jeans, pajama bottoms, yoga pants
6. Low-cut tops
7. T-shirts and logo shirts (polo shirts are okay)
8. Flip-flop shoes

Candidates who are identified by the school or university supervisors to be in violation of the dress code will be sent home from the field and cannot return to the field placement until the appropriate change has been made and a conference with the department chair or departmental faculty has been held. Any missed field experience time as a result of a dress code violation must be made up prior to passing the course(s) associated with the placement in order to receive a minimum grade of C for the course.

All schools require visitors to check in at the front office and require visitors to wear a Visitor ID while on campus. Candidates will purchase a Stetson ID badge prior to entering the junior blocks. Both the Stetson badge and school issued Visitor ID must be worn at all times.

Recording of Teaching Lessons

While delivering lessons in the field, evidence of practice, including recording of teaching may be needed. Volusia County Schools permits recording of lesson delivery only when students in the classroom who are being recorded have completed both the district's Media Release parent permission form AND the Stetson University photo/video release forms (Appendix O). NO recordings of Live Streamed lessons are permitted. The classroom teacher disseminates and collects the district's Media Release form while the Stetson student is responsible for distributing and collecting the Stetson photo/video permission form.

Field Experience Evaluations

Evaluation of performance in the field is a cooperative effort between the Stetson Department of Education faculty and the cooperating classroom teacher. The purpose of the evaluation is to identify strengths and weaknesses, dispositions for teaching, and to guide improvements in teaching techniques. Professionalism is interwoven into all these concepts. The evaluation forms vary with the level of field experience. Appendix N shares the Danielson Assessment C, which is used regularly in elementary field experiences. All field experience must be completed with a satisfactory evaluation to obtain a minimum grade of C, including senior student teaching.

Security and Emergency Information for Schools

Schools cannot operate without specific procedures for maintaining security. When candidates are in the schools, they need to be aware of the basic security measures that are in place. Appendix M presents the minimum security information that candidates need when participating in field experience in the schools.

Copyright Guidelines

Candidates must be very careful to follow the copyright guidelines. The Florida Department of Education requires candidates to know the copyright laws. A summary of the laws most likely to be used in education is in Appendix L. These guidelines often appear on the state teacher's exam.

Student Teaching Experience

Student teaching involves a semester-long field experience in a public school. During the internship semester, pre- and post-student teaching activities on campus are scheduled. These take place during the first and last weeks of the semester calendar. The Director of Student Teaching, in conjunction with the local school districts, is responsible for assignment to school sites and the assignment of the intern's university supervisor.

An internship application meeting is held each semester. Candidates must attend this meeting in the junior year, two semesters prior to the anticipated intern semester. The student teaching application process is discussed at this time. Applications for student teaching are completed during the first month of the semester prior to the planned student teaching semester. The application for student teaching must be submitted by the posted deadline. Failure to meet this deadline will result in not receiving a student teaching placement during the term for which the application was due, likely resulting in a one-semester delay of graduation.

Candidates are not ensured admission to Student Teaching until all Admission Requirements are met, regardless of placement in a classroom. Admitted candidates will receive official notice of admission to Student Teaching at the beginning of the semester in which they begin their field work.

Elementary Education students will take five units during the student teaching semester. Music

Education students will take four units during the student teaching semester. This is a full load, and only for extenuating circumstances will permission be given to take any additional credits during this term.

During student teaching, exemptions from any student teaching responsibilities in order to work, take campus course work, or participate in college activities are not accepted. If there is a pressing need for involvement in any university activities, it must be cleared with the Director of Student Teaching prior to the occurrence, and the Director will advise the clinical university supervisor.

The school calendar of the placement rather than that of the university will be followed with regard to holidays and work schedules. In some instances, a university seminar may meet during a holiday week. Attendance at the seminar is required.

Admission Requirements

To be considered for admission to Student Teaching, a teacher candidate must:

1. Be admitted into the Approved Education Program;
2. Meet expectations on Assessment of Professional Dispositions in all coursework and field experiences as outlined by the program;
3. Complete the Stetson Student Teaching application;
4. Complete the county Student Teaching application;
5. Receive passing scores on all of the Florida Teacher Certification Examinations (FTCE)—General Knowledge, Professional Education, and Subject Area in teaching major;
6. Achieve a grade of C or better in professional education courses;
7. Achieve a GPA of 2.5 or better in major content area and overall;
8. Demonstrate satisfactory progress in each of the following: Danielson Domains, Reading Competencies, and ESOL Domains;
9. Receive a satisfactory behavior recommendation from Stetson’s Office of Community Standards;
10. Complete fingerprinting clearance as required by county school boards.

Student teaching obligations will require an in-depth criminal background check. Background checks for internship placements routinely include information regarding any criminal offenses other than a minor traffic violation. The results of these mandatory background checks may result in the inability to secure final internship placement and removal from the program.

Application Procedure

An internship application meeting is held each semester. Candidates must attend this meeting in the junior year, two semesters prior to the anticipated intern semester. The student teaching application process is discussed at this time. Applications for student teaching are completed during the first month of the semester prior to the planned student teaching semester. The application for student teaching must be submitted by the posted deadline. Failure to meet this deadline will result in not receiving a student teaching placement during the term for which the application was due, likely resulting in a one-semester delay of graduation. Applications are due the semester prior to the internship and will not be accepted unless all parts are completed. Application completion and submission by due date is the candidate’s responsibility.

Student Teaching Placement

The placement of student teachers in clinical settings is a collaborative effort between the local school districts and Stetson's Office of Undergraduate Education. Candidates WILL NOT make personal arrangements with a school for a student teaching assignment. Great care goes into determining the school sites used each semester. The primary concern is appropriately-trained cooperating teachers who work with a diverse student population. Student Teaching Placements may be made prior to the admission of a candidate to Student Teaching and will be revoked if all admission requirements are not met.

Program Frequently Asked Questions

I just transferred to Stetson. Is there anything special I need to do?

Students who transfer to Stetson University after two years of college may find it difficult to meet degree requirements in the remaining four semesters. Some courses in the program of study cannot be transferred, while others need examination of the content and approval by the department faculty or Chair. As a transfer student, you should make an appointment with the Chair of the Department of Education (or the designee of the Chair) and request an evaluation of the time necessary to complete your program. For this appointment, you need to bring an audit sheet from the Registrar's Office showing your transfer credit.

Are there other considerations that I should know that will help me be successful in the Education Program?

The student teaching experience is a full time job, and as a pre-professional, you are required to be present every day of the experience. If you participate in team sports and other extracurricular activities, these cannot interfere with your student teaching. It is your responsibility to remind your advisor of such participation so that your internship can be arranged during a semester when your activities will not conflict with your teaching responsibilities.

What are the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices (FEAPs)?

These are areas of teaching, planning, and interaction that the state of Florida has deemed necessary for you to master to be an effective teacher. These areas were determined by a wide variety of educators and are research based. You will begin learning about the Accomplished Practices in your very first courses, and you will have opportunities to develop the knowledge, skills, and disposition to put these to work in the classroom. The FEAPs will be assessed throughout the program and scores entered in our assessment system (VIA by Watermark). These FEAPs are the basis of many items on the FTCE Professional Education test. A brief summary of the Accomplished Practices is in Appendix B.

How do I apply for a Florida Teaching Certificate?

When you graduate from Stetson's State and CAEP approved program, you may apply for a Florida certificate. Details for application are explained in detail during Student Teaching and can also be found at <http://www.fldoe.org/teaching/certification/>

If you wish to see information concerning employment in Florida schools, check www.teachinflorida.com.

What if I want to teach in a state other than Florida?

Each state has its own unique requirements to earning certification or licensure to teach. If you are interested in applying for another state's teacher certification, contact the State Department of Education in that state and request information concerning the requirements for certification. Since considerable time ordinarily elapses between the filing of an application and the date a certificate is issued, you should apply as far in advance as possible. If you know you will be applying to teach in another state, you should check certification requirements early in your education at Stetson University. For example, if a state requires a particular course or test, you can prepare in advance for these requirements so that you may begin your teaching career with minimal delay. Graduating from a CAEP approved program makes qualifying in many states a much smoother process.

What is Certification by Interstate Reciprocity?

Interstate Reciprocity is a term commonly used when educators certified in one state or jurisdiction seeks certification in another. The National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC) offers member states the opportunity to participate in the Interstate agreement, which governs the details of interstate reciprocity. This agreement enables a state to review the preparation and certification standards of all other states and jurisdictions for specific certificate types (teacher, administrator, support, and vocational). Specific information on the NASDTEC Interstate Agreement, including which states have signed with other states and in what certificate areas, may be found on the NASDTEC web site at <https://www.teaching-certification.com/teaching/florida-teacher-reciprocity.html>.

Stetson University - Education Department Outcomes

Department faculty believe that becoming a teacher is a dynamic process extending from initial preparation over the course of an entire career. Through its program of study, the Department of Education at Stetson University has made a strong commitment to quality teacher education for the 21st century - striving to prepare a common series of courses and experiences that provide knowledge, skills, and attitudes that will enable candidates to meet the needs of students within culturally diverse educational settings in a rapidly changing world.

Professional Commitments and Dispositions

Building on Stetson University's commitment to infuse programs with the values of ethical decision-making, human diversity and commonality, gender equity, community service, and environmental responsibility, department faculty expect that all candidates will:

- show evidence of behaviors that exemplify the ethics of the teaching profession.
- develop awareness, appreciation, and understanding of diverse populations.
- value a questioning and analytic attitude (e.g., utilize critical analysis of data and behavior to initiate change).
- seek articles in professional journals about teaching, learning, educational management, and reform.
- reflect on and formulate a personal philosophy with respect to learning and teaching.

Commitment to Diversity

The Stetson Department of Education commitment to diversity is evident in the strand of Responders to Diversity, which is woven throughout initial teacher preparation and advanced programs and is based on the University's Equity and Inclusion statement (2019) <https://www.stetson.edu/other/climate-study/eandistatement.php>. The design, delivery, and evaluation of the Stetson Department of Education courses and field experiences reflect this commitment. Specifically, department faculty expect that candidates will:

- have knowledge of issues involving teaching and schooling in a complex and culturally diverse society.
- acknowledge differences strengthen classroom communities
- have knowledge of unique learning characteristics, needs, and capabilities of students of different ages, cultural, language and socio-economic backgrounds, and exceptionalities.
- proactively promote and inclusive classroom environment
- demonstrate the ability to bridge theory to practice in a variety of educational settings.

- plan and implement strategies in cultural diversity and nurture human relations with students, peers, teachers, and other stakeholders

Commitment to Technology

Commitment to ongoing and evolving technological utilization is demonstrated through the faculty's use of technology in their teaching and monitoring of students' progress throughout the program. Candidates demonstrate competence in the use of educational technology by utilizing technology during their teaching experiences to help all students learn. The use of technology has been integrated across the curriculum, instruction, field experiences, clinical practice, assessments, and evaluations.

Philosophy

Throughout all our programs, there is an underlying commitment to the following beliefs:

All candidates must understand their own culture and the cultures of others. As educators, they must accept all students and teach in an atmosphere that honors the unique cultural differences and fosters in each student respect and appreciation for human and cultural diversity in a democratic society. See Stetson's Department of Education Strands: Responders to Diversity and Collaborative Instructional Leaders.

Educational leaders influence students towards inherent possibilities of human development by using multiple instructional strategies in high performing learning environments that facilitate the academic achievement of each K-12 student and the importance of the individual's commitment toward living a meaningful life. See Stetson's Department of Education Strands: Collaborative Instructional Leaders and Facilitative Change Agents.

Educators - beyond their responsibility to transmit knowledge - have the mission to transform practices in schools so that all students may learn to their fullest potential and participate fully in our democratic society. See Stetson's Department of Education Strands: Reflective Practitioners and Facilitative Change Agents.

These four organizing strands - Reflective Practitioner, Collaborative Instructional Leader, Responder to Diversity, and Facilitative Change Agent - were established to create a sense of unity across all courses at both the initial and advanced levels.

Reflective Practitioners

The consensus among the Stetson Department of Education faculty is that our intention is to create reflective practitioners who continually evaluate the effects of their choices and actions on others (students, parents, and other professionals in the learning community) and who actively seek out opportunities to grow professionally. This perspective is consistent with a view that candidates should become active learners capable of reflecting upon their experience and implementing appropriate changes in their education. This view is consistent with a philosophy that places responsibility for learning with the individual, and it views learning as an active interaction between teacher and learner. Historically, this view can be linked to the work of John Dewey. In contemporary views, it is connected with constructivist philosophic perspectives and cognitive psychology. This view describes intelligence as thought in action and that to reflect on one's experience is a method that allows for growth. As Dewey described in his Experience and Education (1938), growth occurs through "reconstruction of experience" (p.87). In general, the approach that department members advocate is consistent with Dewey's problem-solving model, which describes five steps: feeling a need to solve a problem, analyzing the difficulty, suggesting alternatives, choosing among the various alternatives, and implementing and evaluating the results.

We believe that learning is an active and collaborative process. Teachers must view knowledge as constructed by learners rather than transmitted by teachers. Candidates should be involved in a classroom community where they will learn to ask questions, share, debate, construct, modify, and develop ideas and ways to solve problems (Johnson & Johnson, 1999; Slavin, 2006).

We believe that teachers and other educators need to ask hard questions about conventional practice (Barazangi, 2006; Reagan, 1993; Goodlad, 1983; Leahy & Corcoran, 1996). Continuous reflection on one's set of beliefs and assumptions about teaching and learning make the process of becoming a teacher a conscious effort of developing a "conscience of craft" (Bush, 1987; Green, 1985). We agree with Reagan's (1993) work relating to reflection-in-action, reflection-on-action, and reflection-for-action. His view offers ways to consider proactive approaches to education - particularly the concept of reflection-for-action.

Reflection-for-action describes an approach that prepares candidates to anticipate what to do in the schools (based on reflection of past action) while planning for subsequent action. Finally, we believe reflective practice can be enhanced through the use of reflective journals, seminars, portfolios, action research and emphasis on teaching as decision-making. The ultimate goal of reflective practice is continuous improvement.

Collaborative Instructional Leaders

Schools today need a collaborative effort between administrators and teachers (Birky, Shelton, & Headley, 2006; Bogan, 2006). According to Barth (2006), educators who become leaders experience personal and professional satisfaction, a reduction in isolation, a sense of instrumentality, and a new learning about schools and the process of change - all of which are reflected in curriculum development and instructional practice. We believe that schools that have strong, effective principals and empowered teacher-leaders tend to be high performing learning organizations (Blasé & Blasé, 2001; Ervay, 2006).

As teacher educators, we prepare future educators to become educational leaders who are open to different perspectives, whose instructional decisions are based on multiple sources of information, and who develop instruction that is responsive to the capabilities and needs of diverse learners. Because assessment is critical to effective instruction, it is important for educators to know how to evaluate students' progress. We believe that if we encourage prospective educators to reflect on their instructional decisions, K-12 student learning will increase.

The primary focus of an instructional leader is to enhance the learning of the students in the classroom. Like Schmoker (2006), we encourage candidates to become "learning leaders." He believes that learning leaders should spend more time discussing and supporting learning. He believes that learning leaders need to focus on monitoring and supporting student success, and teams of teachers must work together to enhance student learning. We believe that teaching pedagogy should address the higher levels of Bloom's taxonomy. Both teachers and leaders should work toward the evaluation and synthesis level of knowledge. As instructional leaders we must synthesize student performance data, adjust teaching strategies, and evaluate and monitor student progress. We should ask no less of our K-12 students. Tucker and Stronge (2005) state that "these emphases combined with purposeful collaboration have resulted not only in sizable achievement gains, but also in higher levels of teacher satisfaction and a feeling of professionalism.

As a department, we believe an educated leader is an individual who can influence people within an organization towards continuous improvement and change. There is no one best way to influence people. Leaders, however, must lead according to the readiness level of the people in the organization that they are attempting to influence (Blanchard, Zigarmi, & Zigarmi, 1985). We believe one must have the ability to analyze a situation, determine the appropriate leadership style the situation warrants, and take action. We believe people have the potential to grow and given an opportunity, can and will respond. Part of this equation, however, is that leaders must first have high expectations of themselves. As educators, we know the impact of teacher expectations on candidate behavior and achievement (Murphy & Alexander, 2006).

Responders to Diversity

Department members recognize the importance regarding issues of diversity within the educational setting. We believe that teachers must move beyond tolerance to acceptance, and they must accomplish this through demonstrating competence that they can recognize, accommodate, and value students' 'cultural capital' (Banks, 2003; Bordieu, 1977). Diversity issues include an understanding of age (developmental readiness, human growth and development); gender; socioeconomic status; academic ability (ESE, exceptional student education, gifted); language (English as a second language); race and ethnicity; and culture - and how each of these concepts presents a multitude of challenges for educators. The challenges that face candidates are not limited to how they teach students of diversity; candidates must also teach about diversity so that their students will ultimately be able to interact and thrive in a diverse world. Such complex issues require delicate handling as well as substantial preparation.

The department faculty believe candidates must develop a repertoire of skills and knowledge that compliment education reform as they endeavor to respond to these issues of diversity (Abedi, 2004). A holistic view of development from novice to advanced practitioner is necessary. Competency-based approaches, in which educators' knowledge, skills, and experiences are considered assets, help educators understand and respond to the diverse needs of today's changing K-12 populations. Reflective and analytical learning must also be emphasized. Societal issues (e.g., crime, drug and alcohol abuse, poverty, homelessness, etc.) require greater collaboration between educators, families, and social service providers (Slocumb & Payne, 2000).

Facilitative Change Agents

Educators must be competent in both content and pedagogy to challenge learners' thinking and facilitate change in schools. It has become increasingly necessary for educators to extend the classroom into the community and become a change agent for educational reform. Fullan (2003), recognized as an international authority on educational reform, links moral purpose and change. We believe, through reflective practice, educational change can occur. Candidates must be prepared with the knowledge, skills, and dispositions to strive for teaching and learning authenticity as they face complex educational challenges such as heightened accountability and curriculum redesign. To think on a critical level, candidates must be able to look at multiple perspectives of a situation as well as the broader social, political, moral, and economic contexts of a problem.

Necessary for one to become a skillful change agent, candidates participate in personal vision building, inquiry, mastery, and collaboration (Fullan, 1999; Fullan, 1993; Senge, 1990). We strive to prepare candidates to practice responsibly and become critical thinkers who can challenge the status quo, effect change, and sustain that change (Fullan, 2005).

Personal vision building entails the candidate to examine one's purpose for wanting to be an educator and the ability to articulate a platform for future action. Closely related to, and necessary for the construction of a personal vision, is the disposition of inquiry. Skillful inquiry is directed at examining information and ideas in the external environment and requires the internalization of norms and habits, which support continuous learning. As change agents, we believe educators must be continuous learners in order to respond in a proactive manner to an increasingly complex and changing world and to use changes such as those in technology and research on best practices to bring appropriate change to our classrooms.

Mastery is necessary for developing an effective change agent. Pedagogical content knowledge is essential for effectiveness in our profession and must be addressed. We believe mastery moves beyond the skillful practice of pedagogy in relation to subject matter. This requires educators to nurture a disposition of personal expertise in order to achieve a deeper understanding of existing conditions, proposed innovations, and potential futures.

Collaboration is also needed to foster one's capacity as a change agent. Through collaboration, educators extend exponentially the power of their personal mastery through the cultivation of group mastery.

The Florida Educator Accomplished Practices

Purpose and Foundational Principles

Purpose

The Educator Accomplished Practices are set forth in rule as Florida's core standards for effective educators. The Accomplished Practices form the foundation for the state's teacher preparation programs, educator certification requirements and school district instructional personnel appraisal systems.

Foundational Principles

The Accomplished Practices are based upon and further describe three essential principles:

Reading Endorsement Competencies 2011

Guiding Principle: Teachers will understand and teach reading as an ongoing strategic process resulting in students comprehending diverse text. Teachers will understand how writing, listening, and speaking support the teaching of reading, and how family involvement supports student achievement in reading. Teachers will understand that all students have instructional needs and apply the systematic problem-solving process: use data to accurately identify a problem, analyze the problem to determine why it is occurring, design and implement instruction/interventions, and evaluate the effectiveness of instruction/interventions. Teachers will understand that the problem-solving process is recursive and ongoing, utilized for effective instructional decision making.

Competency 1: Foundations of Reading Instruction

Teachers will develop substantive understanding of six components of reading as a process: comprehension, oral language, phonological awareness, phonics, fluency, and vocabulary. The total inventory of Performance Indicators (A-G) satisfies Competency 1.

Performance Indicator A: Comprehension

- 1.A.1 Understand that building oral and written language facilitates comprehension.
- 1.A.2 Understand the importance of learning syntax, semantics, pragmatics, vocabulary, and text structures required for comprehension of formal written language of school, often called “academic language.”
- 1.A.3 Understand the impact of text upon reading comprehension (e.g., genre, readability, coherence, text structure, and text complexity).
- 1.A.4 Understand how the interaction of reader characteristics, motivation, purpose of reading, and text elements impacts comprehension and student engagement.
- 1.A.5 Identify cognitive targets (e.g., locate/recall; integrate/interpret; critique/evaluate) and the role of cognitive development in the construction of meaning of literary and informational texts.
- 1.A.6 Understand reading as a process of constructing meaning from a wide variety of print and digital texts and for a variety of purposes.
- 1.A.7 Understand the reading demands posed by domain specific texts.
- 1.A.8 Understand that effective comprehension processes rely on well-developed language, strong inference making, background knowledge, comprehension monitoring and self-correcting.
- 1.A.9 Understand how English language learners’ linguistic and cultural background will influence their comprehension.
- 1.A.10 Understand the role of formal and informal assessment of comprehension in making instructional decisions to meet individual student needs.

Performance Indicator B: Oral Language

- 1.B.1 Understand how the students’ development of phonology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics relates to comprehending written language.
- 1.B.2 Understand the differences between social and academic language.
- 1.B.3 Understand that writing enhances the development of oral language.
- 1.B.4 Understand that the variation in students’ oral language exposure and development requires differentiated instruction.
- 1.B.5 Recognize the importance of English language learners home languages, and their significance for learning to read English.
- 1.B.6 Understand the role of formal and informal oral language assessment to make instructional decisions to meet individual student needs.

Performance Indicator C: Phonological Awareness

- 1.C.1 Understand phonology as it relates to language development and reading achievement (e.g., phonological processing, phonemic awareness skills, phonemic analysis and synthesis).

- 1.C.2 Recognize the phonological continuum beginning with sensitivity to large and concrete units of sound (i.e., words & syllables) and progressing to small and abstract units of sound (onset-rimes and phonemes).
- 1.C.3 Understand that writing, in conjunction with phonological awareness, enhances reading development.
- 1.C.4 Distinguish both phonological and phonemic differences in language and their applications in written and oral discourse patterns (e.g., language & dialect differences).
- 1.C.5 Understand how similarities and differences in sound production between English and other languages affect English language learners' reading development in English.

- ii. Prose: (a) Either a complete article, story or essay of less than 2,500 words, or (b) an excerpt from any prose work of not more than 1,000 words or 10% of the work, whichever is less, but in any event a minimum of 500 words.
(Each of the numerical limits stated in "i" and "ii" above may be expanded to permit the completion of an unfinished line of a poem or of an unfinished prose paragraph.)
- iii. Illustration: One chart, graph, diagram, cartoon or picture per book or per periodical issue.
- iv. "Special" works: Certain works in poetry, prose or in "poetic prose" which often combine language with illustrations and which are intended sometimes for children and at other times for a more general audience fall short of 2,500 words in their entirety. Security and Emergency Information for Schools

The following emergency codes are standard throughout Volusia County. You need to be familiar with these prior to entering the schools. (These concepts are also concepts tested on the Florida Teachers' Exam.

CODE RED – Lockdown/hostage/weapon

All students and staff are locked in their room(s)/building. Teachers shall continue with the teaching activity, or otherwise engage the students, to promote a calm atmosphere. Students and teachers shall stay away from windows and doors or take a position of cover if necessary.

CODE BLUE: Bomb Threat

All students and staff evacuate areas and leave the classroom doors open. No phone, electronic devices can be used. Do not touch lockers, light switches, suspicious objects. Teacher in charge must take roll and notify security team if a student is missing.

CODE YELLOW: Hazardous Material/Chemical

All students and staff in unlocked rooms/buildings. Do not attempt to assist with any cleanup. This procedure is done by trained personnel.

CODE GREEN: Severe Weather/Tornado

Remain in classrooms/buildings. Students in portables will have instructions where they are to assemble in the main building.

Fire or Explosives Evacuation:

This requires swift evacuation to a predestinated area. In leaving, doors are to be closed, but not locked. Roll must be taken at the evacuation site and missing students reported immediately. Teachers must remain with their class until relieved by a member of the security team. Fire drill are a common practice in schools. Accompany your class to evacuation site.

Visitor Sign-In

All visitors to a campus must report to the office before entering classrooms. Each school will have a procedure that you must follow without fail. Even if you are working regularly in a classroom you must sign in each time you are on campus.

Student Sign-Out

Never release a student to anyone who comes to your classroom or play area – not even to a parent. All students must be released through the office.

Clinic Health Issues

Never give any medication to a student or allow a student to self-medicate. This includes cough drops, aspirin etc.

Never perform any invasive procedure—do not take out splinters or specks in eyes. Send the students to the clinic.

In a medical emergency, the teacher must remain with the injured student and send or call for help. Teachers must administer first aid until help arrives in a medical emergency.

If a child says he/she is hurt, send the student to the clinic. Do not assume the roll of medical personnel. In an accident, fill out the required forms. Remember: When in doubt, fill it out!

I am excited to work with your child in Ms./Mrs./Mr. _____'s classroom at _____ School over the course of the next few weeks. Please allow me to introduce myself. My name is _____ and I am an education major at Stetson University. As part of my program requirements for graduation and State of Florida requirements to obtain a teacher license, some of my lessons must be videotaped and/or photographed. Additionally, I may need to collect copies of your child's work (for example, completed worksheets or an essay). The purpose of these activities is for my teaching to be analyzed by my peers and University professors so that we can reflect on teaching and improve every child's learning. The focus of the material collected is on my instruction, not on individual students in the class. My professors may also use some of the material I share with them for additional educational purposes, including program improvement and conference presentations so that other teachers can learn from my and your child's experience. Students' names will be removed from all work before dissemination and none of the material will be published on social media or be available for public viewing.

While I would love to photograph and/or videotape the entire class, and share your child's work for the purposes explained above, I understand that you may not be comfortable with your child to be included in this documentation process. Therefore, if you choose not to allow your child to be part of this process, he or she will still participate in class, but will be moved outside of the camera, and I will not collect the sample work.

Please complete and return the Permission Form to document your permission for these activities. Thank you so much for your time and for considering my request. I look forward to continuing my work with your child as we learn from each other. If you have any questions please contact my instructor: (insert name of instructor)

Como parte de los requisitos para graduación y también obtener la licencia de profesor en el estado de la Florida, necesitaré filmar y fotografiar algunas de mis clases. Además, también necesitaré recoger copias del trabajo de su hijo(a) (por ejemplo: hojas de trabajo o ensayos). El propósito de estas actividades es para que mi docencia sea analizada por mis compañeros y profesores universitarios y así, reflexionar sobre la enseñanza y mejorar el aprendizaje de cada joven. El enfoque del material obtenido es sobre mi instrucción, no sobre los estudiantes. Mis profesores universitarios también podrán usar algo del material que les he compartido para propósitos educativos adicionales, que incluye mejoras al programa y presentaciones en conferencias donde otros profesores podrán aprender de mis experiencias y las de su hijo(a). El nombre de su hijo(a) será removido de los materiales antes de su difusión. Ninguno de los materiales será publicado en redes sociales o estará disponible para el público.

Me gustaría filmar y fotografiar a toda la clase pero yo entiendo que tal vez no se sienta cómodo(a) con su hijo(a) incluido en este proceso. Por lo tanto, si usted elige no permitir que su hijo(a) participe, él/ella seguirá participando en la clase pero será movido fuera de la cámara. Tampoco recogeré su trabajo.
