Open Call for Submissions

A Message for Presenters at the International Wildlife Law Conference 2027

The Journal of International Wildlife Law & Policy—a leading forum for scholarly works on biodiversity protection—welcomes the submission of manuscripts from presenters at the International Wildlife Law Conference 2027. The journal is open to submissions on a rolling basis.

Aims and Scope

The Journal of International Wildlife Law & Policy is an international, peer-reviewed journal publishing high-quality, original research. Since 1998, the journal has been the leading peer-reviewed forum devoted to the study of the legal approaches to biodiversity protection. The journal welcomes submissions addressing aspects of the following broad themes:

- international and regional wildlife treaty regimes in conserving species;
- evaluation of national legislation and regulations focusing on wildlife conservation and management, especially from the Global South and jurisdictions that have been traditionally under-represented in the literature;
- animal law and animal welfare;
- theoretical, ethical, historical and cross-disciplinary approaches to biodiversity regulation;
- the impact of judicial decisions at the national, regional and international levels;
- the interface of legal and political institutions with other sectors in society that have a substantive impact on the management and conservation of species and ecosystems.

For more information, see the journal's full 'Aims & Scope' here.

Preparing your Paper

To prepare your paper for submission, please carefully review and follow the instructions available in the journal's instructions for authors noting the upper word limit of 17,000.

Submitting your Paper

The journal uses Routledge's Submissions Portal to manage the submission process. You can submit your manuscript here (this link is also accessible via the journal's instructions for authors webpage.
