SCHOLARLY PUBLICATIONS AND WORKS-IN-PROGRESS

*Gubernatorial Emergency Powers*, 58 ARIZ. ST. L.J. 707 (2026).

The Constitutional Paradox of the State Executive (work in progress)

- Building from the premise that state constitutions limit power the state already holds rather than granting it, this project derives a principle of structural coherence and a two-step framework that constrains both the governor's claim to emergency authority and the legislature's power to curtail it.

Long-COVID Effects on States' Emergency Response (work in progress)

- Using quantitative analysis and borrowing principles from legal epidemiology, this project assesses whether the recent transfer of emergency powers from governors to legislatures has improved or hindered the effectiveness of state emergency responses.
