ALR – What is it / are they?

- American Law Reports select leading cases and give in-depth research references.
- Not as broad as legal encyclopedias but a wealth of information if you find one on your topic.
- ALR 5th for general and state legal issues.
- ALR Fed 2d for issues of federal law.

ALR – Where do I find it?

- ALRs are published in print. The law library does have print ALRs in both:
  - the Gulfport campus library (ALR - ALR 6th and ALR Fed - ALR Fed 2d)
  - and Tampa campus library (ALR 4th – ALR 5th and ALR Fed 2d)
ALR – Where do I find it?

ALRs are also available on LexisNexis:

- Begins with ALR 2d and is updated as they receive from the publisher.

- and Westlaw:

  Goes all the way back to ALR 1st and is updated weekly. This database also includes electronic annotations (e-annos) not available in print.
ALR – How / why do I use it?

If you have a particular legal issue or case for which you have done no research, ALRs may be very helpful.

In the print volumes there is an index at the end of each set where you can search by topic or by case name. There is also a master index.

Don’t forget to check pocket parts to update your research.

ALR – How / why do I use it?

Online, you use the search box provided.

One of the advantages of using online ALRs is that they are updated much faster than the print.
