

POSITION: TENURE-TRACK PROFESSOR OF LAW

STETSON UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF LAW seeks to fill a tenure-track faculty position in the area of Academic Success and Bar Preparation.

Applicants should have a strong academic record and a demonstrated commitment to outstanding teaching, scholarship, and service. Applicants will be expected to teach courses in the existing curriculum that help students to understand learning techniques and that train students on exam-taking skills and strategies, including strategies for succeeding on the bar exam. The successful candidate will provide input on curricular initiatives, particularly in the application of student learning science and successful learning methods to the law school curriculum. Experienced candidates who prefer a non-tenure-track role will also be considered.

Administrative Responsibilities:

The candidate will be responsible for implementing the College of Law's Academic Success and Bar Preparation Program, including working closely with faculty and administration to implement a comprehensive plan to maximize student learning and achievement in law school and as professionals. The candidate will supervise a staff of academic success and bar preparation professionals who interact with students individually to prepare them for academic and bar exam success, so prior supervisor and management experience is required. The candidate will also organize workshops designed and implemented, along with staff and other faculty, to help students understand the science of learning and develop techniques that lead to improved success on law school exams. The candidate is expected to help identify those students likely to benefit from academic success programming and encourage their participation. The candidate will be involved in new student orientation, including introducing students to the services offered by the academic success program and providing a basic introduction to legal reasoning. The candidate is expected to work with faculty to maximize teaching effectiveness and attain specified student learning outcomes.

Located in Florida's Tampa Bay area, the nation's nineteenth largest metro area, Stetson was established in 1900 and is Florida's oldest law school. Our main campus is in Gulfport, just outside St. Petersburg. We also have a part-time program with classes on both the main campus and our satellite campus in downtown Tampa. Stetson has earned a national reputation for its advocacy, elder law, legal writing, and higher education programs, and has Centers for Excellence in Advocacy, Elder Law, and Higher Education Law and Policy. Stetson nurtures a vibrant intellectual community, situated on a beautiful campus. We encourage potential applicants to visit our website at <https://www.stetson.edu/portal/law/> to learn more about our school, our community and our programs. The law school is a part of Stetson University, with a College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business Administration, and a School of Music in DeLand.
