Any student in good standing may apply for the concentration programs if the student has completed at least 30, but no more than 45, credit hours. Though the acceptance criteria and requirements for each program differ slightly, the following generally apply:

1. Students must complete 21 credit hours within the concentration curriculum, some in mandatory curriculum;
2. Students must obtain a minimum grade in every course, and a 3.0 average for all courses combined, in the concentration curriculum (even if the student completes more than 21 hours in the curriculum);
3. Students must fulfill the concentration's mentoring, pro bono, and (if applicable) service requirements;
4. Students must fulfill the College of Law writing requirement within the concentration; and
5. Students must fulfill all other requirements of the concentration.

Students are responsible for knowing all of the requirements for the concentration program in which they are accepted.
