

STETSON LAW

Enrollment in Electronic Education Courses (International LL.M. Students)

No student in the LL.M. in International Law program may take more than 4 credit hours in any term, nor more than 12 total credit hours of electronic courses toward the degree. International students must exercise caution when enrolling in electronic education courses. No more than 3 credits per semester earned through electronic education may be counted toward the full course of study requirements for international students on an F-1 visa.

International LL.M. students should also refer to the “Electronic Education (Distance Learning) Plan” available on the Policies page at <http://www.stetson.edu/law/policies> .
