

Business Administration

If you're interested in many aspects of the business world, then the business administration major may be right for you. Business administration students participate in an interdepartmental program that covers the full spectrum of business. Within the major, you may further specialize or prepare generally for business, governmental activity, or pre-law or graduate studies. Graduate students in the program take advanced-level classes in all areas of business.

Students take courses in statistics, information technology, financial accounting, management accounting, business ethics, marketing, finance, business communication and strategic management.
