Florida’s First Law School

Tampa Bay, Florida

Founded 1900
I invite you to join a law school committed to preparing lawyers and leaders to serve the legal profession and society. Stetson leads the nation in blending legal doctrine with practical training, evidenced by our top-ranked programs in advocacy and legal writing. Through our academically rigorous curriculum and commitment to social responsibility, Stetson lawyers are ethical advocates ready to succeed in the legal profession.

Christopher M. Pietruszkiewicz
Dean and Professor of Law; Trustee, Law School Admission Council and Southeastern Association of Law Schools; Chair, Data Policy and Collection Committee of the ABA Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar
B.A., University of Scranton; J.D., Loyola University (New Orleans); LL.M., Georgetown University

Not every law school teaches how to become a great lawyer.
U.S. News ranks Stetson #1 for trial advocacy and #6 for legal writing, essential skills for excellent attorneys.

how to become a great lawyer.

At Stetson University College of Law, you will gain the real experience needed to excel in your legal career. Here, you will find more than 60 skills electives, seven teaching courtrooms, five concentration programs, and 36 clinic and internship programs with more than 450 spots available each year.

Advanced bar preparation and career development services provide a foundation needed to become a valued leader in the legal community.
Now more than ever, the profession demands that graduates not only understand the law, but be ready to practice it. Stetson has known this for 115 years.

Many law schools are just beginning to address the call by legal employers to prepare graduates with the expertise needed for the everyday practice of law, but Stetson has been doing this throughout its history. Stetson offered its first trial course in 1902 and became the first law school in Florida to open an in-house clinic in 1963.

In 1994, Stetson became the first — and remains the only — law school to win all five national trial advocacy competitions in a single year.

As a future Stetson lawyer, you will take interactive courses that carefully balance legal theory, policy and world-class skills training. Through experiences inside and outside the traditional classroom, you will learn to connect facts with doctrine, craft creative solutions, and understand an evolving array of legal issues. And from the very first semester, you will learn to advocate persuasively for clients and causes.

Beyond Stetson’s required curriculum, you can prepare for the practice and build relationships with mentors in a variety of ways:

- Participate in Stetson’s championship alternative dispute resolution board, trial team or moot court board.
- Complete at least 60 hours of pro bono service to graduate.
- Work with your professors on research and service projects to begin building your network with leading attorneys.
- Compete in intramural competitions for opening statements, closing arguments or full trials.
- Serve as a student editor for one of Stetson’s four academic law journals.
- Specialize your elective curriculum from a wide range of legal subjects.

“\r\nMy legal training at Stetson has helped me tremendously in being prepared to make decisions today as a president in the NFL. Law school is a great tool; you should take it and use it."

Rich McKay ’84
President, Atlanta Falcons; Past General Manager, Tampa Bay Buccaneers
B.A., Princeton University; J.D., Stetson University
“With its excellent research and writing program, #1-ranked trial advocacy program, and clinics and internships, Stetson provided me all the tools necessary to be successful in my legal career.”

Robert Stines ’09
Attorney, Phelps Dunbar LLP, Tampa, Florida
B.F.A., New York University; J.D., Stetson University
Advocacy competition teams defined

The TRIAL TEAM participates in mock trial competitions before a judge. Teams give opening and closing statements, question witnesses, argue motions, make and respond to objections, and introduce evidence.

The MOOT COURT BOARD members argue appellate cases. Students must submit a written brief and orally argue their positions before a panel of judges.

The ALTERATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION BOARD focuses on legal skills used outside the traditional courtroom: client counseling, negotiation, arbitration and mediation.

“Teaching is the number one priority for Stetson faculty. We believe in an open-door culture and welcome students to our offices.”

Professor Ellen S. Podgor (judge/coach in picture)
Gary Trombley Family White-Collar Crime Research Professor; co-founder of NACDL White Collar Criminal Defense College; editor of the White Collar Crime Prof Blog; Southeastern Association of Law Schools president; and co-author of more than 25 books
Advocacy:

Apply the law to make a difference.

Stetson’s primary strength is its holistic approach to teaching advocacy. As an attorney, your clients will expect you to have the knowledge and ability to advocate for their legal rights. The skills you develop in Stetson’s nationally ranked advocacy and legal writing programs can give you an important competitive edge as you launch your legal career.

Here, you will examine legal theory, review best practices, and understand the professional responsibilities required of lawyers. You will learn the tools to research the law effectively, communicate clearly, persuade successfully, and represent clients ethically from the pretrial stages through the final appellate argument.

Stetson’s winning record in mock trial, moot court and alternative dispute resolution competitions over the past 33 years is unmatched:

- 5 world/international titles
- 65 national championships
- 62 regional championships
- 43 state titles
- 42 best brief awards
- 106 best oralists/advocates

“I chose Stetson for its incredible advocacy program, beautiful campus, and great professors, who really focus on the well-being of their students.”

Yaffi Hilili
Candidate for Juris Doctor, 2015
Moot Court Board member
B.A., University of South Florida

Realize your potential as a leader and professional.

As a Stetson student, you will be regarded as a member of the legal profession from day one. Opportunities abound for you to develop as a professional. You’ll find a wide range of programs, workshops, events, clinics, coursework and extracurricular activities.

Even in your first year, you will gain experience and build connections through pro bono service. Stetson’s ABA-acclaimed Leadership Development Educational Series features workshops taught by community and legal leaders, and students who attend 10 presentations earn a certificate at graduation.

Stetson’s 45 student organizations represent a variety of interests and legal specialties, providing additional opportunities for you to connect with your peers, demonstrate leadership, and serve your community.

An innovative curriculum taught by dedicated professors.

The courses you will take in the J.D. curriculum include foundational courses in contracts, torts, property, constitutional law, civil procedure, criminal law, professional responsibility, evidence, and legal research and writing, with area requirements and electives for a comprehensive educational experience.

To graduate, you will complete 88 credit hours and perform 60 hours of pro bono service. Full-time students spend the first year of their legal education completing most of the required curriculum. Part-time students complete most of the required classes over their first three full semesters and a summer session, taking electives and other requirements over the last two-and-a-half years.

Upon completing your initial requirements, you can tailor your education with a wide range of electives, including international programs, co-curricular activities, clinics and internships.

As a first-year student, you can adapt quickly to the academic demands of law school through the Academic Success Program, which offers workshops in time management, note-taking strategies and exam preparation.

You’ll quickly discover that your greatest resource will be your Stetson faculty, which includes Fulbright scholars, Supreme Court advocates, prolific authors and accomplished attorneys. These scholars not only love teaching, but many also actively involve their students in research and service projects. By taking advantage of such opportunities, you will find mentors to last a lifetime and build valuable connections outside the Stetson community.

Practicing attorneys and judges serve as adjunct professors in specialized areas, and speakers from around the world — including U.S. Supreme Court justices — periodically make presentations on campus.

Required J.D. Courses

- Civil Procedure
- Constitutional Law I
- Contracts
- Criminal Law
- Evidence
- Real Property
- Research and Writing I
- Research and Writing II
- Professional Responsibility
- Torts

For more information about area requirements and electives, visit stetson.edu/law/academics.

Typical Duration

- Full-Time: Three Years
- Part-Time: Four Years (including summers)

51 full-time professors / 8 professional law librarians / 284 number of law courses
Practice makes perfect.

At Stetson, you’ll learn how to apply law and experience legal practice by participating in one of 36 clinic and internship programs offered at more than 60 hosting organizations each year. These organizations include state and federal courts, government agencies, corporations, law firms and legal aid organizations.

While working closely with a full-time Stetson faculty member, you will enhance what you learned in the classroom and build your network through valuable, real-world experience.

In an internship, you will observe and participate in the activities of your host organization, getting a unique behind-the-scenes look at how the law is applied on a daily basis. Your work may include reviewing documents, conducting research, or writing memoranda of law.

In a clinic, you will be authorized to practice law under the supervision of a licensed attorney. In addition to traditional intern responsibilities, you also may interview clients and witnesses, write motions, or advocate in hearings and trials.

Career Development Services
At Stetson, we know that your first job after law school is a big first step in a lifelong, rewarding career. Accordingly, we offer you useful tools and a selection of preparatory services to help you launch your chosen career. An accessible, insightful and enthusiastic career development staff supports your professional choices through individual performance planning and coaching sessions, group meetings and programs.

Stetson’s Career ToolKit workshop series and curriculum — based on insight gained from relationships within the employer communities — provides a framework and essential information for career planning and job searching. Through the ToolKit and other services, we offer instruction in:

- Planning and Organizing Your Job Search
- Job Search Documents and Publications (including resumes and cover letters)
- Professional Etiquette
- Career Preparation During School Breaks
- Social Media Strategies
- Building Your Network
- Talking Points and Conversation
- Judicial Clerkship Preparation

We build relationships and develop opportunities for students and graduates across a number of employer communities. Many of Stetson’s 9,000-member law alumni community stand ready to help students and new graduates get started. While nearly 80% live in Florida, Stetson Law graduates practice in 48 states, the District of Columbia, and 22 foreign countries.

Bar Preparation Services
Stetson’s Office of Bar Preparation Services is designed to assist students with every aspect of bar admission. Our Bar Preparation Services staff includes three full-time attorneys who provide individual counseling and group guidance.

Students benefit from a personalized study plan, and their sample exam answers are reviewed by Stetson’s bar preparation professionals. Stetson alumni also provide tactical and coaching support to graduates taking the bar exam.

Stetson’s bar-passage rate among first-time takers has historically ranked above the state average in Florida, and our graduates also have been successful in passing the bar examination in other states.

“My Stetson education has been a crucial foundation to all of my successes as an attorney. The rigorous writing and skills programs, along with a solid ethical foundation taught at Stetson, have allowed me to provide my clients with superior representation.”

Admissions and Financial Planning

When do new first-year J.D. students start?
Each fall.

What qualifications do I need to apply?
Before enrollment, you must earn a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university. You also must take the Law School Admission Test and register with LSAC’s J.D. Credential Assembly Service.

When should I apply?
Stetson’s Faculty Committee on Admissions and Entering Awards begins reviewing completed J.D. applications in late fall of the preceding academic year. Although applications are accepted until May 15, we highly recommend that you submit your application early, since scholarships are awarded on a rolling basis.

When can transfer J.D. students enroll?
Transfer applications are accepted for fall, spring and summer enrollment.

Which LSAT scores will Stetson accept?
LSAT scores are valid for admission purposes five years from the test date. June LSAT scores may be accepted. We will use your highest LSAT score for admission.

Does Stetson offer support for veterans?
Stetson participates in the Veterans Affairs Yellow Ribbon Program, offering tuition assistance to 15 student veterans or eligible dependents. Stetson also offers endowed scholarships for veteran law students.

How do I apply for scholarships?
All admitted first-year J.D. students are automatically considered for multi-year scholarships, which are awarded based on academic excellence, a range of other personal accomplishments and experiences, and the ability to further Stetson’s mission. If you wish for your unique circumstances and background to be considered, please include an addendum with your application.

Are there scholarships available after my first year?
Stetson offers a small number of partial-tuition merit scholarships based on first-year academic performance, leadership, community service and need. Stetson offers one full-tuition scholarship for a student entering his or her final year with a record of public service who plans to continue that path for three years after graduation.

Can I become a teaching or research assistant?
Teaching assistantships and faculty research assistantships are available on a competitive basis to upper-level students who have a strong academic record and an interest in scholarly research and writing.

How do I apply for other financial aid?
Students seeking any type of federal financial aid must annually submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, available each January 1. Stetson’s school code is E00342. For information about federal student loans, visit www.studentloans.gov. Stetson offers financial literacy workshops and one-on-one sessions with counselors.
