

BACHELOR OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION IN Business Law

PROGRAM OVERVIEW »

BACHELOR OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION | MINOR

Whether you want to learn more about law to help you in your business career or you want to go to law school, our Business Law minor will complement whatever major you choose at Stetson.

Transacting business in today's world requires critical thinking and awareness of the legal environment in which businesses operate. Our Business Law minor prepares students for success in business by providing insight into the challenges and requirements of the increasingly complex legal environment. For students interested in law school, our Business Law minor will introduce you to key legal concepts and sharpen your analytical skills in preparation for continuing your legal education and career.

Our courses address subjects like contracts, sales, business torts, real estate, corporations, LLCs, human resources, bankruptcy, intellectual property and commercial law. Students learn how to study a complex set of facts, analyze issues from all sides and successfully apply the law to the facts. You will develop skills such as critical thinking, public speaking and analytical writing that will help you succeed in business or in law school.

FACULTY »

Our business law curriculum is delivered in small classes by faculty devoted to your success.

- Elizabeth Galloway, JD, Duke University, Director of the Business Law Program
- Linda Cupick, JD, Mercer University
- Todd Richardson, JD, Stetson University
- Basyle Tchividjian, JD, Cumberland School of Law

Laws are everywhere in business, big businesses and small ones. Stetson University's business law minor will help you recognize legal rights and responsibilities and provide you with a stronger foundation for successful decision-making in business or for pursuing a career in business law.

BEYOND THE CLASSROOM

Business Law minors pursue internships with law firms, businesses, and government agencies, providing the opportunity to apply classroom learnings to real-world experiences.
