

BACHELOR OF MUSIC IN Music Performance – Piano

PROGRAM OVERVIEW »

BACHELOR OF MUSIC (PIANO PERFORMANCE) | MAJOR

Compelling music-making requires broad stylistic knowledge, musical depth and advanced technical skills. Our piano students achieve all of the above through weekly, focused one-on-one sessions with primary teachers in addition to regular group studio sessions. You will learn effective practicing methods, use these to develop increased strength, speed and finesse, and apply your new abilities to your creative goals.

Stetson pianist students will master diverse repertoire from the seventeenth century to the twenty-first while developing a thoughtful process for interpreting new works. You will gain technical facility that will allow you to explore an ever broader and more nuanced palate of piano sounds and expression. Our faculty will design an individually tailored study program to help you launch every aspect of your pianism and musicianship to the next level.

PROGRAM BENEFITS »

A stunning campus and exceptional music facilities, including 65 practice rooms, two Steinway concert grands, and a Bosendorfer Imperial concert grand, will inspire you to practice, study and enjoy life. Study organ or harpsichord as a secondary instrument to expand your musical background and repertoire knowledge. You will have many opportunities to perform in the Stetson Piano Scholars Festival as well as the school's weekly recital series, gain critical performance experience to hone stage presence, compete for the chance to perform solo with the Stetson Symphony Orchestra, experience thrilling concerts at our Great Pianists at Stetson series and participate in master classes by internationally renowned visiting artists.

Stetson piano students often pair their passion for music with a significant minor in another subject, culminating in the Bachelor of Music with Outside Field degree. Numerous choices for outside subjects result in successful careers, whether in music or other fields. Some choose Business, with its unique option to stay a 5th year to finish with an additional M.BA By studying at Stetson, you will acquire the tools you need to empower the next phase of your musical and life journey, wherever it leads you.

The piano is your expressive medium – you love music and desire to share it with people. Unmask your potential and build the technical foundation to breathe vitality and beauty into your musical vision. Embark on your journey to pianistic excellence with our renowned, dedicated faculty.
