CALL FOR PAPERS

Special Issue of The Southeastern Naturalist
Conservation, Restoration and Education: In situ natural history education

We are currently accepting abstracts from authors who work in the field of outdoor education for a special issue of the Southeastern Naturalist. The issue will be devoted to papers describing successful natural history education programs conducted within natural areas. We are particularly interested in capturing the diverse range of educational opportunities offered through schools, universities, museums, field stations, or other learning centers in the southeast designed to reach citizens of all ages and backgrounds. Questions and abstract submissions should be directed to Drs. Cindy Bennington and Karen Cole at outdoorclassroom@stetson.edu. A more detailed description of the issue’s focus and scope can be found at www.stetson.edu/sandhill. We will review submitted abstracts between May 15 and 31, notifying potential authors of acceptance by June 5, 2015.
